

Post Office

For years, I've been asking people how much of their mail is advertising. The average answer ranges around 80%. When I ask how much of it they read the answer is close to 0. That means that 80% of what the Post Office delivers is total waste and pollution. Sure do wish they'd quit shitting in my mailbox. Advertising is a lot of their revenue, but it's not cost effective, and it's an ugly, disgusting way to fund the mail.

The US Post Office is our last bastion of private discourse. It can't be hacked and it has a paper trail. This makes the mail-in ballot the most secure form of voting. It's no wonder that Trump and his corrupt cronies wanted to stop it. His crooked Postmaster General attempted to severely cripple the Post Office. Its a good thing he failed.

If we immediately double or triple the drastically subsidized cost of bulk advertising, the volume of junk mail would likely decrease by half to two thirds with no decrease in
